VALLEY PRESS ASSOCIATION TO HOLD FIRST FREE OUTING

Day of Fun Planned at Eldora Park on Wednesday, August 4

TO BE FOR ENTIRE VALLEY

Newspapers to Print Coupons Good To Various Amusements for Women and Children—Outing to be for Everybody.

The first Monongahela valley outing ever given by the Monongahela Valley Press Association is now being announced to be held at Eldora park on Wednesday, August 4, and newspapers all along the valley that are represented in the association are starting preparations for the event.

The outing will be made one of the old-fashioned kind, and will be for everybody. Few towns in the valley are planning town picnics for this year, so the newspapers are taking it upon themselves to give a valley outing under the name of the press association. Instead of the outing being an outing just from one town it will be an outing from several towns, and better arrangements will be made for caring for the crowds than could be made for any one town outing.

The park will be thrown open to the public. Papers represented in the association will print coupons that will be good for women or children on the various amusements. Each issue of each paper up to the date of the outing will contain coupons. Though the coupons will be for the women and children only, the picnic will be for everybody.

Ample arrangements will be made at the park for the entertainment of everybody. Besides park amusements, which are to be free to the public, there will be separate features arranged. Races and other athletic events that will carry with them prizes for the winners will be on the program. Further announcement of further features will be made later.

To make the event all the more interesting and enjoyable the Eldora park management is arranging to entertain the members of the press association with their wives at the park supper annually given the "pencil pushers." Plans for this event will be laid together with plans for the big free outing.

PALACE PROGRAM FOR TONIGHT IS GOOD ONE

The vaudeville program listed for presentation at the Palace theatre tonight, tomorrow and Saturday nights includes good acts. Wilson and Vaughn will appear in a refined comedy and talking act, indicating the importance of this act, special scenery is carried. Heegie and Walton will present the laughing sketch, "Does He Drink?" and Elizabeth Ward will appear in her role of character comedienne and singing girl. The three-part motion picture will be the Lubin film, "The Life Line."

John Monner and sister are planning to leave tomorrow for Atlantic City.

SPEAKERS FOR CAMPMEETING

AT BENTLEYVILLE ENGAGED

Sessions Will Begin on August 6 And Will Last Until August 13—Missions to be Discussed.

Arrangements for the annual Bentleyville campmeeting which begins August 6 and continues until August 13 are about completed.

The speakers for this year are: Rev. R. T. Coursey, of Baltimore, Md.; Dr. George Shaw and Dr. Vaylinger, both of Taylor university, Upland, Ind. Mrs. Reeves has been engaged to take charge of the children's meetings.

Tuesday, August 10, at 2:30 p. m., a missionary service will be held, with the W. F. M. society in charge, the subject for discussion to be on mission work in Japan and Korea. This will be one of the feature services during the series of meetings.

Every arrangement for the convenience of the public for transportation by railroad and street car has been made.

GALA DAY TO BE OBSERVED

August 14 Selected for Big Day at the Charleroi Bathing Beach

DIVING WILL BE FEATURED

Arrangements are being put under way for a big gala day celebration at the Charleroi bathing beach on Saturday, August 14. A special program of events that will carry with it medals for winners of contests will be given.

Manager Howard Ludwig is getting affairs in shape for the day. The events will be as follows:

25-yard race for boys under 14.
50-yard race, open to all.
120 yard race, open to all.

Fancy diving from spring board, plain diving from spring board, back diving, front diving, high platform diving and one extra dive from the spring board.

Canoes events.
Entries for the various events are to be in the hands of Manager Ludwig at the beach August 12.

Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded for the first, second and third places and John B. Schafer, jeweler, is now having these manufactured. They will later be on display at Schafer's Jewelry store.

Officials for the various events will be announced later. Enthusiasm is being manifested in the approaching gala day and already several are practicing in anticipation of participating in the contests.

FIRST-AID CONTESTS TO FEATURE PICNIC

Eldora Park to be Scene of Big Outing of Miners on August 14—Preparations Made—Over $500 in Prizes to be Distributed

First-aid contests that will have to do with the placing of a silver cup for a year will feature the annual picnic and outing of the Miners of District No. 5 to be held on Saturday August 14, at Eldora park. This will be one of the biggest outings of the year along the Monongahela valley, and will bring together hundreds or even thousands of miners and their wives.

Over $500 in prizes will be awarded. There are twelve teams now entered in the first-aid events, and probably there will be more. The Tom's Run team which won the big silver loving cup last year in the contests at Eldora, has a team entered and there are four or five teams from Ellsworth and Cokeburg, together with teams from the Pottsville Coal company, the Vesta mines and the Crescent mine. Whatever team wins the first-aid contest gets the cup for just one year. It takes three wins to entitle any team to undisputed possession. In addition to the cup the members of the winning team will be given gold and silver medals.

An effort is being made to have Prof. E. E. Bach, of Ellsworth to direct the contests. The United States Bureau of Mines has been requested to send a representative to the park as one of the judges of the events.

In addition to the first-aid events, a quail match for the western Pennsylvania championship cup will be held. Interest is being taken in this event and it promises to be a hummer.

Speakers at the miners' outing will be Frank J. Hayes, international vice president and Van Bittner, president of the fifth District, U. M. W. A.

The coming week will be a busy one at Eldora, beginning with a dance given by Mrs. John Jenkins Monday night. Tuesday night the Binghamville club dance, featuring the old-fashioned square dance will be held. The Weber dance will be held as usual Friday.

FAREWELL SUPPER IS GIVEN J. K. RICKEY

Friends of Councilman Gather at Elks' Club to do Him Honor—Is Now in Charge of Large Packing Company's Best District.

Councilman John K. Rickey was tendered an honor supper by about 30 of his intimate friends at the Elks' club Wednesday evening, the affair being given as a farewell. Mr. Rickey has assumed charge of the McKeesport district of the Cudahy Packing company's business, and is preparing to move to McKeesport.

Tom P. Sloan was the toastmaster at the evening's event. He called upon a number for toasts, and eager response was the result. Councilman W. R. Gant, on behalf of those present, after a few remarks presented Mr. Rickey with a diamond set Elks' pin. Mr. Rickey responded briefly and fittingly in receiving this token of regard. Songs were sung and a happy evening spent.

Mr. Rickey has been located in Charleroi for about 12 years as the manager of the local Cudahy Packing company's district. That he has been eminently successful in this work is evidenced by his elevation to the management of the McKeesport district, which is the largest in this end of the state, and one of the largest districts this company operates. He is just finishing up a four-year term in council, as a member of which he has made many friends.

SUSTAINS FRACTURED SKULL; IS SENT TO HOSPITAL

Gus Monisko, a Greek, aged 25 years, sustained a fractured skull in Monessen about 11:30 o'clock Tuesday night when he stepped from a moving street car. Monisko had been to Charleroi and was returning to his home in Monessen. When the car was near Ninth and Schoonmaker streets the man stepped from the car without a signal to the conductor. He lighted on his head sustaining a bad fracture. A doctor was

ANNUAL SCHOOL OF METHODS ANNOUNCED

County Teachers to Meet in Washington High School Building August 25 and 26—Year's Attendance Good.

The annual School of Methods for Washington county teachers will be held in the Washington High School building at Washington August 25 and 26, according to an announcement just made by Superintendent L. R. Crumrine. The program for this event has not been completed but it is understood that it will be one of the best ever offered on this occasion. It is announced, however, that instruction in agriculture will be given in addition to the regular work.

The attendance of teachers to the school of methods is entirely voluntary, as they receive no salary or expenses, but it is expected that all inexperienced teachers and those who have only taught one year will be present. However, it is open to all and there are usually a number of experienced teachers who attend, as all active teachers who wish to succeed in their chosen profession are always anxious to get all the help and instruction that they can, and this school is of great benefit to every teacher in the county. Last year there were 244 teachers present.

Released Under Bail.

George Crumrine, who had waived a hearing and was remanded to jail for court on a charge involving an attack on Dorothy Nixon, little daughter of Samuel Nixon of Bentleyville, has been released under $1,000 bail.

MOST REMARKABLE RECOVERY IN SURGERY REPORTED AT HOSPITAL

W. E. MOORE QUITS PLACE AT HEAD OF WEST PENN COMPANY

General Manager Resigns Position He Has Held for Twelve Years To Enter Business For Himself.

W. E. Moore, vice president and general manager of the West Penn Traction properties at Connellsville has resigned his position with the various West Penn companies to go into business under his own name as consulting engineer in Pittsburgh.

Mr. Moore has been with the West Penn properties for more than twelve years, during which time the properties have grown from gross receipts of approximately $500,000 to about $5,000,000.

The properties consist of 316 miles of city and interurban railway system including Wheeling, a large amount of which was built under Mr. Moore's direction. There are also many electric lighting companies scattered over the western part of Pennsylvania, a portion of Ohio and West Virginia, embracing about 125 municipalities. Mr. Moore is known here where he has had business connections because of his position.

PARADE TONIGHT FOR CHAUTAUQUA

Pennants and Banners to Wave From Autos—Hats To Be Given Out

TICKETS NOW SELLING FAST

Tonight will be the night for the Chautauqua automobile parade that is always a feature of the week preceding a Chautauqua like Charleroi is to enjoy for seven days beginning next Tuesday. Prof. E. E. Hicks, the nine-day man in charge of affairs, is working together with the local committee toward the success of the parade.

The autos are to be assembled at 6:30 promptly at the railroad station, and it is from this point that the parade will move. Pennants will be given the children who will ride in the parade and "Chautauqua" hats will be distributed. The Boy Scouts it is expected will be out in full force for the parade. Trucks will be provided for them.

Next Monday the superintendent, E. L. Duxbury, of Buffalo, N. Y., will arrive together with his four assistants. Last year the assistants to the superintendent which visited Charleroi were from Bucknell college, but this year those who will visit here will be from various colleges, including the University of Pittsburg and Grove City college.

Decorations and pennants have already been placed over the town, giving it a gala appearance. Tickets are selling rapidly, and everything points to an eminently successful Chautauqua.

Mrs. Lucy Chamberlain Out Of Local Institution After Awful Injury

SHIRT COOL THROUGH BODY

Heart Pushed Aside and Canal to Stomach Penetrated—Liquids Come Out Wound at Back For Five Days After Accident.

One of the most remarkable recoveries in present day surgery is reported at the Charleroi-Monessen hospital, Mrs. Lucy Chamberlain, aged 23 years of South Brownsville today having left the hospital with what ordinarily would have been a death wound completely through her chest nearly healed. Dr. A. O. Davis, her physician says her recovery is sure, and this afternoon at his office took an X-ray photograph of the wound.

Mrs. Chamberlain was riding in a jitney bus driven by Samuel Fox of Speers on Monday evening, June 14, when the bus collided with a grocery wagon driven by Lester Waggoner of Charleroi. In the collision the shafts of the wagon were so sprung that one of them struck Mrs. Chamberlain almost directly over her heart.

Though the shaft was an inch and one-half in diameter on the point, it went through the body. It pushed the heart aside, drove a steel corner rib into the chest wall and penetrated the aescophagus (this being the cartilaginous canal to the stomach) before coming out her back. Mrs. Chamberlain was pulled from the protruding shaft by "Ferry" Urwin, who was in the machine and rushed to Dr. Davis' office, apparently in a dying condition. Later she was hurried to the Charleroi-Monessen hospital, and placed upon the operating table. From the first practically no hopes were entertained for her recovery. In spite of her injury she talked readily.

For five days after being entered at the hospital liquids swallowed by Mrs. Chamberlain came out her back. A state of gangrene set in, but nature proved a wonderful purifier in her case and this poisonous condition was largely relieved. In her back the wound was so large that a man's three fingers could be inserted. In the breast the hole was larger.

Surgeons noted in Pittsburg and throughout the country, who have heard of the case and who have visited lately at the hospital have pronounced it the case the most unusual in history. One famous Pittsburg surgeon said, "I have seen cases of this kind, but victims are all in the grave." Mrs. Chamberlain, it is expected will be able to return to her home in Brownsville shortly and doctors are hopeful that within a few months all evidence of her wounds will have completely disappeared.

To Hold Demonstration.

HEALTHY BODY AND MIND

It has been the despair of many a philosopher that while civilization grows finer, subtler, more complex, and produces people with keener mentality, better brains with more of them, the mind deteriorates. The body becomes lax as the mind grows firm. Bones, muscles, and sinews shrink and health with them. Within very recent years before the great war, England furnished a public example by having to lower the requirements of height and health in order to obtain the necessary army recruits, says the McKeesport News.

The reason is partly natural—the neglect of one side of man, when emphasis is concentrated on another—and partly artificial—the product of letting industry run wild in its demands on human energy and its consumption of human nerves. Both are remedial; and both are being remedied. A deliberate, conscious regard for physical health is being promulgated in laws, in literature, in the press and in the schools.

Speaking only of the last, gymnastics plays a larger part in all kinds and ages of instruction, while more is taught of the uses and abuses of the body. The newest aspects of this propaganda of health comes from the child federation and the board of education in Philadelphia. The federation is extending the classroom work in connection with playgrounds, by which 10,000 girls in the seventh and eighth grades were taught the care of babies and young children last summer. The public schools next fall will add some very practical and personal instruction to the courses they have given in physiology. The care of the teeth, personal cleanliness, exercises in breathing and physical development will form part of instruction given almost wholly by oral means and through personal demonstration. Such advances mean no desertion of the schools' function to teach the brain. They mean only a facilitation. A healthy mind is almost impossible, certainly not very useful, without the old Greek duality, a healthy body.

MONESSEN'S GROWTH

In the latest census estimate compiled by the Federal census bureau Monessen borough is quoted as having something over 20,000 population. Monessen cheerfully accepts as authentic the bureau's figures, so we rather surmise when the actual count is made in 1929 a few folks across the creek are going to call somebody bad names.

The census taker in 1910 found Monessen to be a thriving municipality of 11,775 souls, and growing like fury. They turned back to the 1900 records, found 2,197 people resided there then, and began figuring. They calculated carefully, learning the rate of growth per cent. per annum, and the percentage.

They have counted on the basis of growth the preceding ten years to come. Therefore to state it another way Monessen's population for each succeeding year after 1910 has been calculated on the growth preceding that time of official decennial census.

Monessen acquired a large population by annexation from 1900 to 1910, which of course was the period of its most rapid development incident to its establishment as one of the important industrial centers of the Monongahela valley. It is together the growth of the borough in the decade preceding the official census was little less than phenomenal.

Because it was the official growth is why the estimates now are incorrect. By annexation Charleroi could increase wonderfully in population before the next official count, but the basis established for population estimates the ensuing five or ten years would be entirely inconsistent with the actual growth.

There is sense in all things. Monessen is growing rapidly but not as rapidly as it did preceding 1910, hence any estimates based on that previous growth cannot be authentic. The fact is that Monessen's population is jumping in estimate when it is not in reality.

One of the hardest ordinances of them all to enforce is the curfew ordinance. And to be perfectly frank it doesn't seem to be very well enforced. Recently one midnight a group of tots averaging perhaps less than 8 years of age engaged in a harum-scarum sort of play on McKean avenue. Yet the curfew had sounded promptly at 9 o'clock. It is not so much the fault of the police, who honestly try to enforce the curfew, with reasonable allowances, but it is somewhat the fault of the parents that the law is not better obeyed.

The efforts of the school board to collect delinquent taxes through due processes of law is bound to attract attention and bring results, which is the ultimate desire. People able to pay taxes ought to pay them, and if they do not do this willingly, ought to be made to pay them. A man who enjoys the benefits of a good residence and school community without helping pay for what he enjoys partakes more or less of the nature of a leech, harsh though the term may seem.

Especially important will be the election of councilmen this fall because of the "big" business in which the borough is engaged in its comprehensive paving schemes. The engineering department, coming under jurisdiction of council, promises to furnish some problems, engaged as it is actively in the expenditure of public funds.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Mick" White, of the Mexico Ledger, went up to Chicago to attend the advertising men's convention and incidentally to have a good time. But some of the art for art's sake features thrown in with the menu at this hotel seemed to have palled on him.

In a letter to his paper he says: "There are times when music with your meals is happily acceptable. This is especially true if you are seated next to the diner whose carelessness in eating soup calls forth cadences somewhat resembling the gurgle of a swimmer. But when an incessantly repeated, artificially-coined occasional phrase of once again vintage and hand-decorated features waits in a grating voice a popular song in a crowded cafe it makes the true Mis-ourian long for a hit of the 'state canary' as it mournfully bids the day adieu at dusk."

"Just why the cabaret has not been taken in charge by the Society for the Prevention of Unnecessary Noise is unexplainable."

Pietra had drifted down to Florida and was working with a gang at railroad construction. He had been told to beware of rattlesnakes, but assured that they would always give the warning rattle before striking.

One hot day he was eating his noon luncheon on a pine log when he saw a big rattler coiled a few feet in front of him. He eyed the serpent and began to lift his legs over the log. He had barely got them out of the way when the snake's fangs hit the bark beneath him.

"Sun of a gun!" yelled Pietro. "Why you no ringa da bell?"

The reason why a man is certain that other people are getting a lot of graft is because none of it is coming his way.

Before he gets her she is the girl of his dreams. But after a while he regards her as a sort of a nightmare.

Sometimes father has a hard time making up his mind what to get mother for her birthday present. He knows that she needs a new rug for the dining room and that she needs new linoleum in the kitchen, and it is hard to decide which would make the more appropriate gift.

One reason why friend wife isn't contented is because if you let her have her own way she will want to do something else.

The man who marries for money usually gets more than he bargained for.

The reason a princess knows that the face powder she uses is invisible is because a fellow has to go into a saloon and borrow a whisker to get the flour off his coat after he has spent a few hours calling on her.

Money To Burn

A woman who had spent half a lifetime saving by putting away a part of her income each week in a box in the closet, suddenly found herself destitute when her home burned down and destroyed $1900.00 which she had accumulated.

If you will put your savings into a savings account with this bank your money will not only be safe from fire, theft and other danger, but it will draw 4 per cent interest, compounded semi-annually.

The Boy Scouts—A Feature of Chautauqua Week

HON. WOODROW WILSON, president of the United States, is honorary president of the Boy Scout organization of America. This will be of interest here in view of the fact that Boy Scout drills and scout craft are to be a feature of our forthcoming Chautauqua.

To those unacquainted with the Boy Scout movement a few facts will be of interest. The Boy Scout order originated with Lieutenant General Baden-Powell of England and today has more than 500,000 members in England, 750,000 in America and 25,000 in Australia. There are more than 5,000 members of the order in Chicago alone, representing Jewish, Catholic and Protestant churches, social settlements, playgrounds and Y. M. C. A.'s. The object of the movement is character building for boys between the ages of twelve and eighteen. It is an effort to train them in self reliance, manhood, good citizenship and scout craft. Scout craft includes instruction in first aid to the injured, life saving, signaling, nature study, camp craft, woodcraft, chivalry and patriotism.

Each boy must take the scout oath, the form of which is "I will do my best; to do my duty to God and my country and to obey the scout law; to help other people at all times; to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

SEEK TO SPREAD KNOWLEDGE

Anti-Tuberculosis Association Has Plan for Further Training of Doctors and Nurses.

For the purpose of securing more co-operation from physicians and nurses in the anti-tuberculosis campaign, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis has inaugurated a movement to bring the importance of this subject to the attention of these two groups.

Among the first things which the association is trying to do is to induce the medical colleges and schools of nursing to give more instruction, particularly of a clinical nature, on tuberculosis. An effort will be made also to reach the individual practitioners and nurses by special booklets prepared for this purpose. The clinical and other organizations affiliated with the national association will, so far as possible, be made available for the widest possible use in training doctors and nurses in tuberculosis work.

"The object of this campaign," says Dr. Charles J. Hatfield, executive secretary of the national association, in making the announcement, "is primarily to secure more accurate and earlier diagnosis of tuberculosis on the part of physicians and to show nurses the great opportunities of service in the home care of consumptives. We shall also be able to put the average family physician in touch with the best methods of treating tuberculosis and with the most recent literature on that subject, thereby affording to the general public increased protection from this disease. Practically all of the medical colleges and schools of nursing of the country have expressed their approval of our plan and have offered to co-operate with us. While the medical profession generally has unselfishly assisted the nation-wide campaign against this disease, we feel, because of its prevalence, tuberculosis should be given special attention by medical students and practicing physicians everywhere. No other single disease demands so much time and attention from the general practitioner in medicine. We shall try to make it easy for any doctor or nurse to acquire a specialized knowledge of tuberculosis."

Mrs. Gummidge.

I do not know whether Dickens seriously intended Mrs. Gummidge to be taken as a portrait of Queen Victoria, but there is not the slightest doubt that there is a strong likeness between the illustrious sovereign who mourned so faithfully for Prince Albert, and the charming old lady in "David Copperfield," who was always "thinking of the old 'un."

If Queen Victoria had been the widow of a Yarmouth fisherman her devotion to the memory of her husband might have seemed Gummidgean to her most loyal subjects. But the luxury of regret is one of the privileges of royalty, whereas in humble life it is a comic extravagance. The poor woman cannot afford to spend her life in weeping over the most excellent spouse. Perpetual brooding over the best of men is in our day regarded as mawkish and morbid. Queen Alexandra has set all widows a splendid example of cheerful fortitude and energetic social service. The modern woman is far more practical than her mother or her grandmother. It is the modern man who wallows in unhealthy sentiment, and who revels in gloom and melancholy. Nearly every man relies on some valiantly optimistic woman to revive his drooping soul.—London Opinion.

Dire Fate.

Nancy Jay of Richmond is four years old and full of wisdom—and some Scripture.

Nancy's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jay. The parents belong to a coterie that gathers every so often to agitate the feet in the new dances. Recently the dancing club adopted the plan of meeting at Mr. and Mrs. Jay's every other Monday evening. The Jays have a house well adapted to dancing. The members of the club bring their suppers as if bound for a picnic. They eat then dance.

Nancy Jay has grown weary of the commotion. And so, a few nights ago, as she knelt by her bed to pray, she made up a little Lord's prayer all her own. The mother was startled to hear this plea issue from her daughter's supplicating soul:

"And, O Lord, deliver us from people and lead us not into temptation."—Indianapolis News.

Rough on the Marquis.

Gallant Dublin is telling this little story about the departure of the marquis and marchioness of Aberdeen just before they left they paid an informal farewell visit to a female national school in one of the slum districts of the city. In the infants' room, while his excellency was talking to the teachers, Lady Aberdeen had gathered all the little ones around her to give them some motherly advice about their folk dances, which she hoped they wouldn't neglect when she had gone away. Then a tiny little mite of four began to finger her bib uneasily and, siding up to Lady Aberdeen, piped, "Please, ma'am, why can't you stay in Dublin and let your father go alone?"—Manchester Guardian.

TRULY HOUSE OF MEMORIES

Uncle Ab Dusenberry Was Able to Provide Particulars Concerning Ancient Abode.

What a dear, dear old house! said Miss Amarantha Gushington to Uncle Ab Dusenberry when he was taking her for a drive during the first week he was one of his "summer people," and they had stopped before an ancient and deserted house.

"These dear old houses!" said Miss Amarantha. "I love to people them with the people and the things of the past. So much of romance, of human weal and woe, of song and story, are woven into the wood and warp of their history. This looks to me like a veritable house of dreams, an abode of which there are tales to tell, a bit of romance embodied in wood and stone, a veritable house of memories. Tell me some of the romance of this house, won't you, dear Mr. Dusenberry?"

"Well," said Uncle Ab, "I reckon maybe I kin 've heern many a time how when old Bill Skinner lived there one o' his gals, Elviry Jane I think it was, tuk it into her head to elope with Buck Pillsbury, an' a round o' the laund' broke an' buckled then went into a barl o' rainwater jist as Bill's old bulldog come onto the scene an' Bill hussell come lopin' out of a lower window with his shotgun, an' his wife who was a cross 'tween a rattlesnake and a hyenar once she got her mad up, arriv with a long iron poker in one hand and a hoss-whip in the other, an' when they got done with Buck he had to go home on his hands an' knees part o' the way, an' Elviry Jane run off with a map peddler the next week. Her mother was married five times, an' three of 'em was livin' at one time, same as if she belonged to Newport's best sassiety. Her father was married four times, an' her brother Jep 'loped with his stepmother's sister from this house, an' a couple o' years later she 'loped with his brother an' he married her sister, standin' right at the front gate, with the preacher standin' in the road. Bill's mother married a farm hand in this house when she was sixty-five years old and the farm hand was twenty-nine. So, take it by an' large, there's been considerable romance mixed up with the old Skinner place, an', as you say, it's a kind of a house o' memories."—Puck.

Queen Elizabeth.

She—Elizabeth—was a hard mistress to serve. Irresolute and yet obstinate, she frequently refused to act or decide, procrastinated, delayed, hesitated, while her ministers watched disaster approach or opportunity vanish. Even her most influential advisers found it impossible to overcome the inveterate trail of indecision. Their correspondence shows them driven almost to despair in times of exigency at the queen's vacillation and unreasonableness. An indorsement by a clerk on a letter of 1600 still exists in faded handwriting to testify to this habit. "A letter which her majesty willed me to write to her secretary, and to send it by post, but before I had fully ended the letter she sent me to bring it to her before it was closed, which I did upon the point of six o'clock, and then her majesty having read and scanned it three or four times and sometimes willing me to send it away, and sometimes altering that purpose, commanded me at last to stay both the letter and the post."—E. P. Cheyney.

A Hearty Meal.

"When I was a little girl," says a friend of the Companion, "I had the honor of being introduced to Mark Twain. It was just before Thanksgiving, and I very proudly told him that I was going to spend the holiday with my aunt in New York."

"Really," he drawled, with the most flattering show of interest. "Well, I hope you will feel, after dinner, just as I did when I went there to a banquet a few months ago."

"Of course I instantly demanded to know, 'How was that?'"

"Very thankful," answered Mr. Clemens, with preternatural solemnity. "Very, very thankful because I still had one article of apparel that wasn't too tight a fit for comfort."

"Oh, I know," I guessed eagerly; "your shoes!" But the humorist shook his head.

"No, no," he corrected with gentle sadness. "my umbrella!"—Youth's Companion.

Teacher Should Have Known.

The naughty boy of the class came into school half an hour late. He apologized to the lady teacher and, pulling an orange from his pocket, gracefully proffered it as a propitiatory gift.

Just a trifle to his surprise it was promptly accepted and put into the teacher's desk. When dinner time arrived the young man showed reluctance to depart.

The teacher, with covert amusement, watched him as he awkwardly wrung about, and finally inquired: "Well Tommy, why don't you go?" "Want me orange," he muttered. "Your orange? Why, you gave it to me. You said you had brought it for me," exostulated the teacher. "Yes," admitted the youngster, aggrieved, but, he knew I was only kiddin'."

Times Have Changed.

"Men used to be accused of going to the opera in order to see the baller."

"Yes. Times have changed. Now wives say the opera plots are improper, but take us to see the classic dancing."

JUDGE'S "TREE TOAD"

MUSICAL NOTE PLEASED THE OLD GENTLEMAN.

Engine Blast That Almost Burst the Ear Drums of Other Members of the Party Caused Him Enjoyment.

At one of the rehearsals of "Robin Hood" by the Bostonians, on the occasion of that company's first week in Detroit, William H. MacDonald and Henry Clay Barnabee were crucially listening to a finale. Conductor Sam Studley was wildly waving his baton and shouting "For! For! For!"

"For! For!" echoed through the building, as the vocal sound, the shrieks of the violins, the crash of brass and the thunder of drums united in one ear-splitting forissimo. When the tumult had subsided Barney and Mac looked at each other inquiringly.

"Fair, eh?" commented MacDonald.

But Barnabee merely replied, as he walked rapidly toward the stage, down the center aisle. "It reminds me of Judge Hand's tree toad." (Judge George E. Hand was then and had been for many years a familiar figure in the life of Detroit. He had been probate judge, had practiced law until old age interposed a valid objection to further intellectual activity, was a social beau of the old school, the dean of Russell house boarders, unless, indeed, Madame Centemeri out-yearled him, and very hard of hearing.)

"What on earth, or in the air, has Judge Hand's tree toad to do with a finale in 'Robin Hood?'" queried the astonished MacDonald. But it was not until they were seated at luncheon that Barney enlightened his associate.

In the days of Barnabee's historic concert tours (in the seventies), when his rendering of "The Mac With the Cork Leg" had set the country in a roar, and which some of us still remember as an example of unique musical humor, Barnabee was a guest of Judge Hand, and was invited by that courteous, though stiffly informal, gentleman to join an expedition to the Grand Trunk Junction, near which lay some realty that was in litigation, of which the judge had professional charge. Other members of the party were the jurors and the court official connected with the suit. After inspecting the property the men took their way to the railway station to await the coming of the home-bound train. Freight trains were thundering to the right of them; to the left of them; in front of them, and all around them. Engines wildly shrieked in the distance and at close quarters; but the catastrophe was not reached until one engine, more malignant than the rest, puffing quivered on the rails close to the judge's party, and let go a whistle the unearthly piercingness of which not even Gabriel's trumpet could equal.

When the victims of the blast recovered breath they beheld the smiling judge in a mild ecstasy.

"Dear me," he spoke in the most dulcet of accents, "that is the first tree toad I've heard this season."

To Prevent Flies.

If, as a certain French scientist claims, flies dislike the color blue, it might pay to paint the kitchen walls a vivid cerulean as an experiment. It has been said that flies do not rise above the second floor, but by actual observation a fly has been seen to rise nearly fifty feet and the writer has been bothered with them on the eighth floor of an office building where they were almost too numerous to have made their way up in the elevator. Housewives should burn all refuse as soon as possible, or at least keep the lid tightly over the garbage can.

It does not keep out flies to leave one window uncurtained even if all the "rest" are protected and all screams should be put up before the first May not spell. The only way to keep flies out is to prevent their getting in in the first place, as killing the intruders does not destroy the microscopic eggs secreted about the house.

Admiral Peary's Lucky Number.

Even so practical a man as Admiral Peary has his little superstition and is not ashamed to confess it. Talking at a dinner in his honor, held in Washington the other night, he called attention to the fact that six is his lucky number. He was born on the sixth of May; the ship in which he reached "farthest north" prior to the discovery of the pole left land on the sixth of March; the Roosevelt, on its voyage that achieved the coveted goal, sailed from New York on the sixth of July; the pole was reached on the sixth of April, and the wireless message from the Labrador coast announcing the discovery was flashed on the sixth of September. We hope six has not lost its charm for the admiral, and that in years to come it will bring him further successes and renown.

Curtailed Entertainment.

"What are you going to talk about, at your meeting?" asked Mr. McClellan.

"About the advantages the country will enjoy when women vote at all elections."

"And there isn't going to be any gossip at all?"

"None whatever."
"Well, I suppose it's all right. But it doesn't give a man near as much interesting chat to look forward to when he comes home to his evening meal."
